I notice that there has been a lack of understanding of the trends in the development of the only one resource that Singapore has - human talent. This book helps people who want to deploy human talent so that the potential of individuals can be fully utilized. Success depends on: • Knowing yourself and what you can do • Knowing the business environment in which you operate. The demand for the services of the employment agency is especially crucial in the next few years as the government undertakes a huge programme of public housing, infrastructure development and the completion of Terminals 4 and 5 and the development of the former Paya Lebar Airport into other uses. In 2013 an innovative step was taken to bring in Sri Lankan and Filipino workers who had been laid off with the ending of the building boom in the Gulf States. The young people of Singapore expect their employment agency to place them in jobs that are challenging and yet at the same time good sources of income • Know what the main customer (the contractor/employer) and the secondary customer (the worker) want in the way the worker is deployed, the salary paid and the physical contribution made to the completed job that the ultimate customer pays for. Excerpt from The Employment-Certificate System: A Safeguard for the Working Child In talking with working children about the reason for their having left school for employment, frequently the reply is: I didn't like school and I wanted to work. Usually the reasons are found to be economic or educational maladjustments of the individual child. It is obvious that if we are to succeed in keeping children in school until they have had a chance for an education some means must be provided of finding out, understanding. And remedying the individual child's difficulties. His problems must be discovered before they have loomed so large in his limited experience as to determine an unwise course, or before they have become such serious difficulties as to handicap him permanently. It has been found advisable in a number of communities to secure the services of visiting teachers not to get the child back to school but to prevent the unfortunate, unconscious drive out from school which results when the school fails to see and understand and remedy each child's individual problem. The aim of the visiting teacher is to adjust the conditions, in the lives of individual children, that retard development and school progress and that are responsible for school conduct, scholarship, or attendance.
